INTRODUCTION

Founded by Harshavardhan Vijay Moghe and affiliated with Imperium Azure, the Azure Fellows League is a community of likeminded people with great ideas for the world, humanity and future. These people include innovators, leaders, pioneers, thinkers and visionaries who have unique perspectives, ways of thinking and expertise to bring to the table for consideration. The place where the community is manifest can be in-person, virtual and/or hybrid. This document, AF League, focuses on the virtual mode for the most part, that is, the Discord server platform.

The following outlines what the Azure Fellows League really is and what not.

PARTICIPATION FRAMEWORK

What It Is

Engaging Culture

Interactions and participation include intellectual, creative and practical debates and discussions on topics, ideas and issues of specific, niched interest.

Inspiring Project Assignments

Apply diverse skills, knowledge and values in producing experimental ideas, theories, results or so on, in relation to specific themes and topics. This involves use of filesharing, open-source software and interoperable data workflows to suit various project modes including design, whiteboarding, drawing, visualisation, modelling, simulation and so on.

Integrated Learning

Learn from other members, whether experienced or not, and leaders alike whilst undertaking courses, attending lectures and exercising use of newly acquired concepts and applying them in hypothetical situations and practical tasks.

What It Is NOT

NOT Employment

Azure Fellows League is a community with shared interests but NOT employment nor workforce. This means anyone from all walks of life and with differing abilities is welcome to join, volunteer and partake in its activities. Also, while the members may share around their fruitful accomplishments — as long as it's with the consent of the collaborators and institutional admin — the fruits of such project collaboration in the form of products and contents are not for sale.

NOT Grassroots Advocacy

While the Azure Fellows League leans on discussing and developing innovative and visionary solutions and ideas to address real world problems and issues as well as imaginative and hypothetical scenarios, it is NOT a political force and so takes no responsibility for the members using the internal contents and experiences to leverage their propagandist and political aims to action.

NOT Cultism, Roleplay Or Political Simulation

It is NOT a cult so worshipping a central leader or two has no place at the Azure Fellows League. Religious preaching and conversion will not be tolerated for the community is rather creative, intellectually oriented and forward-thinking. Argumentation, questioning and challenging even the leaders' ideas within reasonable limit and in a civil manner is however encouraged where appropriate. As well, it is neither roleplay nor mock simulation of an imaginary state or political parties since it deals with real world data but also imaginary and hypothetical ideas and stresses upon rigorous methodologies in certain to unique project endeavours.
